Hannisdal graduated as medical doctor from the University of Oslo in 1987.
She approved as a specialist in Ear-Nose-Throat diseases in 1997.

Her thesis (PhD) at the University of Oslo in 2011 examined HVP-virus in tonsillar carcinomas:
Changes in etiology and prognosis in tonsillar carcinomas.

Hannisdal has worked in specialist practice outside hospital from 2001.
Since 2010 she has worked as specialist with public contract with Health Region South-East.
Hannisdal is manager of Clinic Roa www.klinikkroa.no which hosts other specialist services.

She has specialized in investigation and treatment of vertigo and balance disturbances, and work together with two physiotherapists in treatment and rehabilitation.
A well-equipped balance laboratory assists in differential diagnostics.

Hannisdal investigates about 1500 new patients with vertigo each year, and her practice is considered to be the most specialized outside hospitals in Norway.
She therefore receives patients from other specialists, hospitals and all parts of Norway.
